International Association for Volunteer Effort

IAVE and Credit Suisse, one of the world's leading financial institutions, are jointly hosting "The European Conference on Corporate Volunteering," August 31- September 1, 2015 in Zurich. All businesses, of any size and from any industry, headquartered or operating in Europe, are invited to participate.

The goal of the conference is to significantly advance both the discussion and the practice of corporate volunteering in Europe, engaging key thought leaders as well as executives and managers of companies committed to developing strong, high impact volunteer efforts.

Who Should Attend

This conference is for businesses that have in place or wish to develop employee volunteer efforts, whether in their home countries, regionally or globally. It is intended to stimulate dialogue and mutual learning among companies from throughout Europe. Participation by NGOs and international agencies will be by invitation.

The Venue

The conference will be held at Seminarhotel Bocken, just 30 minutes from the Zurich international airport. With an extensive campus above Lake Zurich, Bocken offers a unique atmosphere for participants to pause from their daily work to share, reflect, learn and plan together.

The Program

The program content is being developed with significant input from European companies. It will focus on the forces shaping corporate volunteering, globally, regionally and within companies – opportunities, innovations and challenges. It will explore such issues as how companies can increase the impact of their volunteer efforts, how they can leverage technology to increase participation and how volunteering can be a strategic asset in achieving business goals. It also will illuminate how companies can build strong strategic partnerships with leading NGOs, United Nations agencies and one another to contribute to the UN's post-2015 development agenda.

The conference will include plenary sessions, break out issue discussions, and workshops in which companies will have the opportunity to showcase their volunteer efforts. Click here to view the complete program.
